- Hepatitis B is a viral infection, which causes inflammation of the liver
- It is transmitted through contact with semen, blood or other body fluids from an infected person
- Most common means of transmission: from mother to baby around the time of birth, unprotected sex & sharing needles when injecting drugs
- Less common means of transmission: unscreened blood or blood products (very rare in Ireland), accidental needlestick/blood exposure in healthcare settings, household/close contact particularly in early childhood, sharing razors or toothbrushes
- 50-100 times more infectious than HIV
- Incubation period (time from infection to onset symptoms) is 6 weeks to 6 months, average 2-3 months
